UH West O'ahu's Weekly Newsletter - Week of April 4, 2022 (View in browser)

Ka Pe'ahi Lono April 2022

This month's Pe'ahi Lono is filled with celebrations and information – I hope you will take the time to scroll through it. This month we introduce you to Dr. Lea Kinikini, our new Director of the Institute for Research and Engaged Scholarship, we ask for your kōkua to support our student enrollment efforts, and alert you to important events coming up! Take a moment to scroll through our recent UH West O'ahu Report to the Board of Regents slide deck, review the work of our Kūlana o Kapolei Dr. Manu Meyer, and catch up with the brilliant work of colleagues and students.

Video: Dr. Albie Miles at Hawai'i Storytellers: Food, Farmers, Fishponds & Friends

Dr. Albie Miles, assistant professor of Sustainable Community Food Systems at UH West O'ahu, was one of the speakers at Hawai'i Storytellers: Food, Farmers, Fishponds & Friends. The Honolulu Civil Beat event last month featured stories told by people whose lives have been greatly influenced by Hawai'i's food systems.

News from Ka Puna O Kalo‘i

UH West O‘ahu identifies priorities to address students’ basic needs as part of systemwide plan

The University of Hawai‘i–West O‘ahu’s top priorities to address its students’ basic needs — such as food, housing, childcare, mental health, clothing, living expenses, and transportation — include connecting students to resources and services, and staffing to coordinate basic needs efforts across the UH West O‘ahu campus.

Congratulations to Dr. Camonia Graham-Tutt for being a "Women Who Mean Business" honoree!

Congratulations to UH West O‘ahu’s Dr. Camonia Graham-Tutt for being one of the 32 honorees of the 24th Pacific Business News Women Who Mean Business awards. The 2022 awards ceremony recognizes the strides being made by some of the most influential women in Hawai‘i’s business community.
