BARBER'S POINT PEOPLE....bid Aloha to Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Inouye and family as they leave for a mainland vacation. The send-off was a gesture of appreciation from these Navy people who have enjoyed Sam's orchids.

Ewa Family's Dream Trip Made Possible By Barber's Point Friends

It doesn't take much to spread happiness and joy. And sometimes, gestures of friendship bring back a lot more than inner satisfaction. That's what happened to the Sam Inouyes of Tenney Village. Two weeks ago they left for a mainland vacation, years sooner than they expected, and all because of their backyard hobby and generosity in sharing it with others.

Sam's hobby is raising orchids. He always had a lot of blossoms. A few years ago, through a friend, Chaplain Fred Bennett, Sam began decorating the Barber's Point chapel. After a while, he was also supplying decorations for Navy dances and special occasions such as Easter mornings at the officers' beach.

Sam's hobby got involved too when the interest became widespread. Soon she was helping Sam teach Navy families how to grow orchids and how to make orchid corsages.

Two friends who enjoyed the orchids knew about the Inouyes saving toward their dream trip to the mainland and decided to help them. These friends, Chaplain Bennett and Herman J. Strum, executive officer at Barber's Point, invited the Inouyes to be their guests on a vacation.

Chaplain Bennett, now the senior chaplain at Annapolis, had the Inouyes there for the graduation festivities. Then he plans to take them through the New England and mid-western states. Mr. Strum will go on leave to have the Inouyes as his house guests in Kansas City, Missouri. His plans so far call for tours around the south-eastern states, probably as far south as Florida and Louisiana. In between these "guided-by-friends" tours, Sam plans to visit his younger brother, Minoru, in Detroit, Michigan. The trip ends with a treat for the Inouye youngsters, Joanne and Gordon, which is a tour of fabulous Disneyland.

The send-off at the airport was a heart-warming event. A host of other Navy friends from the neighboring community of Barber's Point gathered to make

Misses Funayama and Tarasawa Return To U.H.

Lillian Funayama and Harue Tarasawa, both prominent young women of our community, will return to the University of Hawaii campus. Starting June 24, they will enter the Teachers' College. Both of them graduated from the University of Hawaii in 1954 with Bachelor of Science degrees in Recreation Leadership.

Lillian has played an important role in our community following her graduation. She did a commendable job of teaching and directing the Ewa Recreation Association pre-kindergarten the past 3 years. We will all miss her service.

Harue acted in the capacity of the rural Y.W.C.A. secretary from 1954 to date and was of great help to Ewa girls. She will also be missed by the community.

it a touching and joyous affair. And so ends our little saga on the spirit of friendship--how a little orchid hobby, tempered with generosity that brought happiness to thousands, blossomed into the fulfillment of a dream.

Ewa School First Graders' Operetta

"Sleeping Beauty" a Big Hit

Ewa school first graders from Mrs. Chee's and Miss Hamamoto's classes made a big hit with their operetta "Sleeping Beauty" at the school. In fact, it was such a hit that the show was put on TV--Keiki time on Kini Popo show on June 7 for the enjoyment of those who couldn't see it at the school.

The operetta "Sleeping Beauty" originated when the Room 2 students studying music came across the term "Operetta", according to Miss Hamamoto. She noticed that the children had keen interest in it and knew a number of students in her class to be very talented. One thing leading to another, she selected a series of music and lyrics from a 4th grade music book and revised the more difficult parts for the operetta. She also originated the dance steps so they would be simple enough for the children.

Most of the costumes were made by Miss Hamamoto and Mrs. Chee. Some were from the school's storeroom and most of the props, backdrops and other incidentals were made by both teachers with the help of some of the older students.

Those were some of the questions in the minds of the members of Pupu Ao Ewa and their friends who attended the recently held "beefing" session sponsored by West Oahu County Extension Service at the Ewa gym.

To continue with this topic and to go further into preparation of meat, etc., members of Pupu Ao Ewa will meet on Wednesday, June 19th at the Ewa gym at 7 p.m.

For extra-curricular activity for this summer, the annual Mother's Camp is being held at Camp Erdman during Father's Day week-end. Masae Takahashi from Pupu Ao Ewa will lead the craft session at this camp.
