"WE CATER"

* ALL ABOUT ROSIE *

Rosie Cheeks grew up in Kakaako and claimed she had been an "Aloha Week Queen." She never divulged the year, but we think it was sometime in the '50s.

A New York talent agent discovered her in Honolulu (riding in the Aloha Week Parade). Believing her to be a promising model, he decided to take her beautiful looks to the mainland.

Fortunately, for us, her looks never carried her as far as she hoped. So, to make ends meet, she got her first job in the Secaucus Diner, near the New Jersey Turnpike. She worked hard long hours and became known as the "Queen of the Diners."

Rosie became the friendly face to lost souls. She was always making sure you got a full cup of coffee, a smile and a "home cooked meal."

From Sacaucus, she worked in Teaneck, to Hackensack and on to Paramus, hoping one day she would return to Hawaii with all those "home-cooked secret recipes," swearing never to use aerosol cans, MSG or margarine. She promised to serve only the freshest vegetables and the lumpiest mashed potatoes.

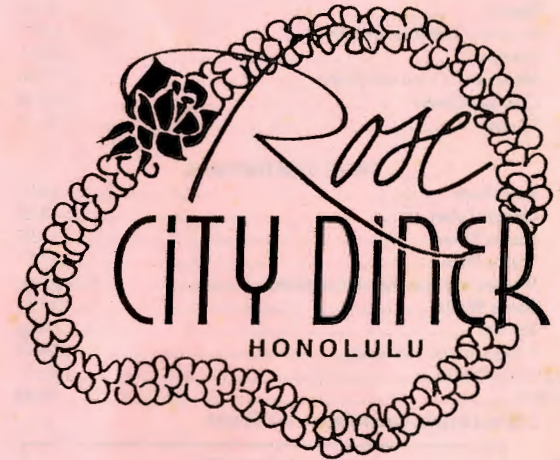

But she longed to return to Kakaako, her "hometown." Rosie's brother, Dick, and her nephew, Rick, with a highschool "sweetheart" (who advised her on a location), brought her back to Hawaii to open the "ROSE CITY DINER."

Home at last, the rest will be history, and all of you at "ROSE CITY DINER" will be a big part of it.

Rosie's Brother,

Dick
