 Elevating Developmental Ed at Kapiolani CC

This article, published in the Journal of the Japan Association for Developmental Education, Vol.4, No.1 (2009) offers an account of the development of the Kahikoluamea Department at KCC through the evolution of the Holomua, First Year Experience, and Malama Hawaii programs, the research conducted on the institutional level and by KCC faculty on student learning and success issues, and the Reorganization of the college, which included the appropriate budget-related decisions. This article illustrates a planning process that was based on the college's mission, utilized the college's culture of evidence, and resulted in change in the college focused on continuous improvement of student learning and success.
